```
  Gbm                    E             B                       E
     We could call it a coincidence, if that would be better for you
  Gbm Abm    A                E             A                B       E12
     But the way that it all fell into place, was more than I could do
  A                        E          B                E
     Is that a glimmer of recognition, fleeting in our eyes
  Gbm Abm A                     E12   C#m          B             E  Gbm Abm
              A random act of happenstance, or a miracle in disguise

  A                    E       B                E      Gbm Abm
     I'm counting on a miracle, expecting a surprise
     A               C#m                        B            A    Abm Gbm E
     Insight right between the eyes . . . or a miracle in disguise
```

Such a gentle whispering, barely there at all

If it was clear, for cryin' out loud, it'd be easier to make the call

Is it marching to a phantom drummer, imagination or lies

Or the leading edge of pure creation, a miracle in disguise

Chorus, Break (verse structure)

```
A            Abm   Gbm                 E      Gbm Abm
Is it synchronicity, or simply random chance
    A          Abm   A          B      E12
And do I necessarilly, have to take a stance
A              Abm      A        Am       E
One way or the other, a blessing or it's cruel
Gbm               Abm                   A     B      A * * E E12 * *
Who can tell, and who decides . . . the seer or the fool
```

Chorus twice

```
     B         A * * E E12
Or a miracle
```
